No elephants, hippos or rhinos? Means a thumb down for me. I will change it if said animals are included at a later date.. I played the original game and honestly I thought it was pretty fun. The issue is that this DLC doesn't really add much to the game, except a few new characters, you get Hauyn to follow you around (but can't actually use her in battle) and you can get your characters to look like other FF characters. The issue I have is that there are still a very well known bug with water/ice not being properly displayed that has yet to have been fixed (half of Shiva's head is just see through), and even if I change my characters to look like Noctis or Serah for example, it only shows on the menu screen but in game they look the same...? What's the point then?. the demo is confusing. This is a nice route, gives you that Florida feeling. The CSX C40-8W's as we all know should have a different horn and bell with it. But other than that it's pretty cool.. i love playing all 3 dark witch games on 3ds, its fun to get all achievements and 100% the games on 3ds i might 100% the game again but on pc. Haven't played much, but I am sold on the Macross experience.. 10x better then Fraps by far.. Wow! So fun!

This is the kind of game that I can't fully explain why it's fun. It just is. If you like flight simulator games, you probably know what I mean, and this is a perfectly good one. It's in the perfect sweet spot of not too realistic but nothing feels weird or especially gamey about it either. It's also possible to mod in your favorite fighters and there's already a big list of aeros you can download, hopefully more in the future.

My one complaint is that the perma-death feature is annoying in this kind of game. You can build up a lot of progress and then get nailed by something you can't even see. You'll be playing the same early stages over and over again, especially as you get the hang of it, although there are permanent unlockable weapons that make it easier eventually. The targeting system is also less than perfect, but I can forgive that in an indie game.. I tried playing it with friends and none of us enjoyed it. It got boring very quick and the game is quite repetitive; i played about 30 minutes trying the different game modes but we just wanted to play a better game instead. the game also doesn't explain the controls very well at all. If i were to recommend getting a 4 player co op game, get stick fight instead. much easier to pick up and play and has much more content.

I regret buying this game, it's not a badly made game and it doesn't have bugs but it is just boring.. If it looks like something you'd like and you see a price you're okay paying, then get it.

But I'm not sure.

For me it was kinda too slow to get some stuff done.

And it didn't live up to everything it could have been.

Better start play "Jones in the Fast Lane" again. It is by far much better...

But to the Grand Life... I did want to have it a very long time and waited for a discount. When the lunar sales happened (-35%) I took my chance.

Oh and how I am disappointed. Maybe my mistake, that I was/am too much influenced by Jones, and did hope for a "Jones 2.0". But it is maybe Jones 0.5? The graphics are boring and the map is too filled with all. Jones was simple but fun. This is "complex" but no fun.

Try Jones (free and legal download), or the demo of this game (I saw it only after I did buy). But please, do not expect too much.... Excelent game! Very addictive and fun. Completely recommend it.. Save the Trees.
Tower Defense game that is light, easy and runs well.
Plays EXACTLY like you would expect from this style of game.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=eKhK-3khgLc>. The official skins for the planes in this DLC can be downloaded from this page. <https://riseofflight.com/forum/topic/45373-new-useful-materials-page-official-links/>. I picked the game up solely on the basis of playing as a chicken.

I've played roughly half an hour of this game so far (stage 17). The concept of the game is very cute, a stealth puzzle game with a chicken as the protagonist. The controls take a bit of getting used to. WASD at an isometric perspective is a little strange. The gameplay is simple, navigate the puzzles/mazes as a chicken, avoiding hazards and enemies, to make it to the goal of the elevator.

Pros:

- You can play as a fully customizable chicken.
- It's easy to pick up and play.
- The developer has stated in the community page that they plan to create and release more stages.Cons:
  - The translation for the dialogue is a little busted, but it's passable/forgivable as the creator doesn't use English as a primary language.
  - Some of the obstacles can get to be frustrating. For example, timing to avoid things or using objects to hide behind/block lasers doesn't always work as you intend it to.
  - The game is oddly devoid of sound for about the first 10 minutes. I thought it was broken at first, but you really don't hear anything until you learn to lay eggs.
  - I'm at stage 17 after playing 30 minutes of the game, and if the description is correct and there are only 30+ levels, the cost to play time ratio is a bit wonky at full price, but again as stated above, if the developer continues to release levels, it's not going to be a huge issue.
All in all, this is probably far too ojective of a review for a simple game, but I thought it might be helpful for people who are interested to get a feel for what this game is like.. It's like having Total Annihilation back!.
Commands recognition is great!
Options for Steam URI commands are a sweet addition.
